Dave Dorman's Books Grab Attention of Recent Emmy Winner, Rosemont Productions

Summary: Dave Dorman's hardcover novel "Dead Heat" and graphic novel RAIL: Wasted Lands are being considered for development by Emmy award-winning Rosemont Productions.

SHALIMAR, FL—Florida's best known Aliens, Indiana Jones, Batman and Star Wars artist, Dave Dorman, might be adding feature films to his résumé soon. Rosemont Productions, recent Emmy winners for their feature film Door to Door, contacted Dorman to get copies of his hardcover novel Dead Heat, and his graphic novel, RAIL: Wasted Lands.

Dorman, who was voted "The #1 Star Wars Artist of All Times," was surprised by the call. "Dead Heat was published in the mid-'90s by MOJO Press and has flown under radar for quite a while. RAIL, which was published in late 2001 by Image Comics, has already generated interest from HBO, Artisan Entertainment and John Carpenter's production company, Storm King," Dorman related. "Del Stone Jr., my writing partner on both projects, is a well-established, Bram Stoker award-winning sci-fi and horror writer and I know these stories would translate beautifully into TV and film," he adds.

Fans of Dorman's epic Wasted Lands saga, a sci-fi motorcycle western action adventure series, are eagerly awaiting the next three installments of the story, which are currently being courted by French publisher, Humanoids.
